BISHOP QUAYLE IS MASTER OF SUBJECT

MOST ELOQUENT OF METHODIST BISHOPS ADDRESSES LARGE NUMBER SUNDAY.

IS NOT LIFE MORE?

Speaker Declares Great Peril of Soul Is That People Do Not Know That Life Is More.

Speaking with great volume and power, accompanied by natural gestures and a pleasing, inspiring smile, Bishop William Quayle, the most eloquent of Methodist bishops addressed a large congregation last evening at the Cargill Memorial Methodist Episcopal church on the subject of "Is Not Life More?"

District Superintendent Rev. Perry Miller introduced the speaker for the evening. Rev. Miller said: "In May, 1908, there was a Methodist gathering in Baltimore numbering approximately 550 delegates. This gathering was known as the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. At that time we were taking up great church business matters, and there was one which appealed to the delegates present as being the most difficult problem to solve. It was the selection of eight new Methodist bishops."

We could see the difficulty in picking out the eight for everyone included in those 550 delegates was a job. After the vote was over it dawned upon us that we had made a most excellent selection. And it is with this story that I am especially grateful and proud to have the distinction of introducing to you my friends, the most eloquent and distinguished of these recently elected bishops, William A. Quayle.

The bishop began by selecting his text from the sixth chapter of Matthew, taking the verse "Is not life more than meat?"

"Life," said the bishop, "is quite an extraordinary thing, a thing in which we are all concerned, and engaged. It is the one thing and the only unambiguous thing in the world."

"We do not know life's origin. We are not covering them, due to a long journey. We think little about it. How are we going to value that journey. The first must tell the story, but does it? What value are we going to give to life?"

"Is life less, or is life more? That is what Jesus Christ said when he came upon this earth. Let me ask you, is life worth more than the dinner table, the card, the wheat field, the pink tea, the chess game? I am sure that the answer will come from everyone of you extemporaneously that life is worth more, and is more."

A man who purchases a stein of beer and enjoys life. Life there is less, I tell you, and that is a fact. Many people think dinner is greater than life. They will trade life for a dinner with hell thrown in, rather than exist without eating, for a few hours."

"What is life, I ask again?" continued the speaker. "The great peril of the human soul today is, 'People do not know life is more.' How high is life? That is the question. A thousand men stand in line, with rifles in their mouths, and in a few seconds they are pierced with bullets and are killed. My observation of life is a trivial thing to understand."

The bishop by this time had reached the height of his theme. At times finding his address he became excited, within him now, rested a voice filled with volume, which filled the church. His auburn red hair waved with his ringing words and his smile was radiant.

"A man who thinks that he knows something, and he receives a degree. This degree gives him the title of Master of Arts, with a recognized name and made life. He is the master of life. Life, pure and good, which is his only theme. He set a life, which is called Christ life, and He used that life only. We are not at the bulk of life. I have seen a man steal a ride on a street car, for five cents. Why, I wouldn't do that, unless the price of the ride was at least ten cents. When you raise pigs, it is all right. But when you are one, it is not all right. I would rather be in a trying case, with a good piece of pork, than to steal or be a pig."

"Is life more than a steamer trunk to you? If it is not, a few traps will fill it. If life is more, you could not begin to fill yourself in the glories of what life really is. I always refer to my lack of knowledge in algebra, by minus a plus. I often think, is life a minus quantity or a plus quantity?"

"It is better for a man to starve than to steal. We are all innocent of that fact, however. Recently, where I told this same thing, I was informed later that a minister in that certain place took his text on that subject the following Sunday and addressed his people for over an hour criticizing me. I was rather angry, but I thought I didn't even know him. I merely borrowed God's remarks when I made that statement, and I was criticized. We would be corpses with policy there. resurrection. If we steal, life is less. Of course, we have to eat. It is necessary to eat, if we began eating the absent treatment diet, we would all be corpses soon. Eating is not only necessary, but it is expensive. The peculiar fact is, cannot understand why the price did not come down when wages fell. The hen is still letting in energy. Remember, my friends, we eat to live, but forget that notion that we live to eat. In doing so, we eat to die. We would cut out 'eat' from their vocabulary. It would be more high-toned and fashionable. I would not criticize in a million years that a certain woman would be more attractive with a better dress wrapped about her. I would not criticize in a million years if a green vest took to a man better than a white one. Me for the man who worships life. The man who wears a green vest, live front with a green vest, or the man who makes a big splurge with a garment pressed last night, and nothing in them today, has not mastered the real worship of life. Is life less, or more?"

"Christ came upon this earth dressed in a robe with sandals on his feet. He walked about and healed because he knew what life was. We are in the presence of a divine who are killing off large numbers, but why? The soul is our only protection, and remember that my friends."

"The other day there was a large shipwreck. The ship was the 'Titanic'. The people were going down to their last resting place in large numbers. There was a negro man with a life preserver standing on the deck of the vessel, and how he did worship that life preserver. He realized that with that apparatus about his neck he could be saved. He looked about him and discovered a poor, aged woman praying for aid. Taking the life preserver from his neck he placed it about the unknown woman standing close by, where water was dashing its waves about them both. He then was caught by a wave and was dashed to death. Is not life more, my dear friends?"

"Christ came to die for those who were deathless folks. People, don't complain over infringements of communities, don't whine over any little thing. You are more than a Christian, and that is why he climbed through the blue sky one beautiful morning, to the heavens above, just to prove to the world that life was more than meat."

I was born from Christ said before Abraham. 'I am the life.' Fame and fortune are necessary, but they are very, very little things. They only live three minutes. Is not life more, more, more, or is it less? He shall have light and have it more abundantly."

The bishop talked about an hour and fifteen minutes.

URGE THOROUGH WORK ON COUNTY HIGHWAYS

STATE ROAD SCHOOL SOUNDS ECONOMY KEY-NOTE SAYS COMMISSIONER MOORE.

WASTE IN MACHINERY

Methods of Selling Road Building Tools in Wisconsin Severely Criticized—Other Matters Discussed.

More than anything else representatives of the state highway commission urged the counties of the state and their road commissioners to be thorough in the road work undertaken during the coming season, said Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore today. Mr. Moore returned on Friday from the annual road school, which was held at Madison last week.

Although the total fund raised in Wisconsin for building new roads in 1914 amounts to over $4,000,000, a sum greatly in advance of what was spent last season, the highway commission warned the commissioners against undertaking more work than they could finish satisfactorily, and urged the necessity of giving a dollar's worth of work for every dollar appropriated.

Fear Extravagance. "It was noted by the commission," said Mr. Moore, "that much of the work in the state last year was not completed; in fact Rock county was one of the few sections of the state where the amount of construction work planned for was accomplished."

The state highway engineer, A. R. Hirst, gave the road machinery commission a severe scolding according to Mr. Moore, criticizing them for the methods employed in the sale of road building tools. Mr. Hirst attacked especially the custom of "winning and dining" the road committees that came to Madison for the purpose of inspecting machinery. As a result the cost of road tools was increased greatly to the taxpayers who must of course pay the bills.

Members of the commission told Mr. Moore that the prices for the same machinery from the same firms varied as much as $500 on one implement, according to information which they had on file. The commission would not accept such practices, and these are ready to take drastic action against offenders, members of county purchasing committees as well as machinery companies.

Tire Wagon. Mr. Moore introduced a resolution which was passed by the county commissioners petitioning the legislature to pass a law at its next session which would make it a misdemeanor to use on which are destructive to the cause of good roads. According to one commissioner they serve as scarifiers, cutting up the newly built roads and destroying the surfaces, especially in the spring and muddy seasons.

Mr. Moore explained that the plan he had in mind would provide that persons who persisted in using narrow tread wagons must pay a license, except in the case of owners of a small amount to be graduated according to the width of the tire, and wagons with four-inch tires to be exempted altogether. Mr. Moore even goes so far as to suggest that owners of such persons using wagons with six-inch tires on the highways.

The highway commission is decidedly opposed to the new law which provides for county and state aid in the building of streets in villages and fourth class cities where such streets connect with the main county highways. It is probable that some effort will be made to have the measure repealed by the next legislature.

The construction of city and village streets under the county commission's direction not only adds materially to his work, when he has more than he can conscientiously look after at present, but such work involves the complicated engineering questions such as the laying of curb and gutters, sewer and water mains, in addition to the grading and surfacing, which are hardly in the commissioner's province for solution.

Some counties have refused to put city streets on the highway map and in those cases it has been useless for the county to attempt to aid. In Rock county the village of Milton and the same have been allowed by the county board to be added to the highway map. In the case of Edgerton, whose petition was passed by the supervisors last month, the petition was defective and must be amended so that the streets to be improved connect with main county highways.

The members of the road committee of the county board spent one day at the road school for the purpose of inspecting the machinery exhibit, giving special attention to stone crushers four of which are to be purchased this spring. Bids will be received for the same, and March 10 is the date named for making the purchase.

HON. SOLOMON CARR HAS PASSED AWAY

Old Pioneer of Wisconsin Passed Away at Residence of Heart Trouble—Was 83 Years Old.

Milton Junction, Wis., Feb. 16.—Solomon C. Carr, an early settler of Rock county, died after a brief illness of heart trouble. He was 83 years old, a native of New York state, and came to Wisconsin when but 9 years old. Up to a few years ago he had followed the occupation of farmer. He was a republican in politics and held a number of local and town offices. In 1865 he was elected to the state legislature and was again chosen to that office in 1874.

Mr. Carr was a leader in the state grange, and for twelve years was lecturer of that organization. This winter he missed a meeting of the grange for the first time in forty years. He was an extensive traveler in this country, as well as in Europe and Africa.

In 1851 Mr. Carr married Miss Isabelle Mackay of Belvidere, N. Y., who died in 1900. Four children, two sons and two daughters of this union survive. In 1902 Mr. Carr was united in marriage to Miss Alice Butler of Philadelphia, N. J., a cousin of his first wife, who is still living. Wednesday at two o'clock from his late residence and 2:30 from the Methodist church.

Miss Margaret Murphy, aged 48, died yesterday morning at 2:30 at the home of her brother, J. J. Murphy, 2021 Pleasant street, heart failure being her affliction. She was the daughter of Edward and Katherine Murphy of this city, and was born in Janesville in 1865. She has always made Janesville her home. She leaves three brothers, Michael, Texas, Richard of Madison, and John J. of this city. The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Patrick Carney, funeral services for Mrs. Patrick Carney were held yesterday afternoon from St. Patrick's church at two o'clock and burial was made at Mt. Olivet cemetery. The pallbearers were John Donahue, E. F. Gillespie, Edward Walsh, James Riley, J. B. Farrington, and William Kennedy.

Mrs. Sarah L. Lienau, funeral services for Mrs. Sarah L. Lienau, were held this afternoon from the home, 412 Blaine avenue, Rev. T. D. Williams officiating. The pallbearers were Alexander Leachman, W. A. Murray, E. J. Schmieder, and O. O'Brien. Interment was made at Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Rhoda Ceola Pelton, funeral services for Mrs. Rhoda Ceola Pelton were held this afternoon at two-thirty from the home, 502 Glen street, Rev. C. J. Roberts of the United Brethren church officiating. The pallbearers were Arthur Fisher, W. E. Heiser, B. C. Randall, Fred Clemons, C. Shottle, and F. B. Cummings. Interment was made at Oak Hill cemetery.

John Thorn, funeral services for John Thorn, were held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock from the home, 870 Glen street, Rev. Willmann of the Trinity Episcopal church officiating. The funeral was attended by a large number of friends of which included a number of employees from the Janesville Machine company, at which factory Mr. Thorn had held a position for many years. The pallbearers were Fred Smith, Charles Pascoe, Andrew Timpany, John Boyce, J. S. Smith and William Boehsch. The remains were placed in a vault in Oak Hill chapel, for temporary quarters. Interment will be made in the spring.

The world-touring Sox and Giants should remember that while in Rome they must do as the Romans do. At least as the Romans came in their time. Upon reaching Rome in their trot around the globe the teams discovered that they would not be allowed to exhibit till they proved to the satisfaction of the city council or whoever it was in authority that the American pastime as we play it is not a brutal game. Somehow the Romans had acquired the notion that baseball was a game of torture and very dangerous to watch. They had prepared a large net to be stretched over the field in such a way as to shield the spectators. And even after it was patiently explained that the game had no alarming features, several tin snags had to be played to convince the authorities that there would be no dead and injured.

Humid Kalla Pasha, the Turkish-American wrestler, was asked if Pristensky, the Bohemian mat artist, was very strong. Whereupon Humid replied as follows: "It's so strong that wanna day I see 'em pick 'em self up (and the Turk got hold of his shoe laces) and hold 'em self in the air just like thies (and Pasha strained at his laces for five minutes. We are also showing a beautiful assortment of " Cheney Silks" in Crepe Meteor and Crepe De Chine, 40 inches wide, full line of colors, street and evening shades. Crepe De Chine $2.00 yard. Crepe Meteor $2.50 yard. The display is now at its best.

Governor McGovern and many members of the staff of wardens on particular lines of work. William Mason of this city was in attendance and reports that the sessions were most interesting and instructive and that the outline of the work for the coming year showed that it would be along educational lines similar to that he undertook last spring when he gave several lectures in rural schools. The establishment of bird preserves was also taken up as were many other questions of preservation of the game and fish of the forests and rivers and lakes of the state.

MANY ENTRIES FOR CITY BOWLING MEET

Schedule Starts Tomorrow Night, Two Men Teams and Single Men Rolling Each Night.

Tomorrow night the city bowling tournament opens at Miller's alleys and the contestants will roll until Friday the twenty-seventh, to finish the schedule. There have been sixteen teams entered in the doubles and thirty-four bowlers have signed for the individual entries.

In the double entries the individual bowlers have been split up so that no team has a decided advantage over the other. All the men entered are capable bowlers and some good scores and close matches are expected. The bowling tournament is attracting considerable attention and the fans are watching the scores carefully. Hines leads the list with four straight victories and has performed in a winning style. Playing ability in the draw shot he has easily defeated his opponents.

The schedule for the bowling tournament is as follows, the double men rolling from seven-thirty until nine and the individuals from nine until ten thirty.

WILLIE SCHAEFFER ON BOXING PROGRAM

Chicago Speed Boy Will Clash With Walter Bauman of Milwaukee in First of Local Bouts.

The program for the first boxing exhibition to be given by the Bower City Athletic Club on Thursday evening, February 26th, at the Myers Theatre, promises to be most interesting. The most prominent bout, among those scheduled, will be between Willie Schaeffer of Chicago, and Walter Bauman of Milwaukee, who will meet in a ten-round bout, at 145 pounds.

Young Sharkey of Milwaukee will meet Bud Corbett of Burlington in an eight-round affair, each weighing in at 125 pounds. Russell Gordon of Rockford, and Joe Percente of Madison, will offer the fight fans a good six-round mill in the third exhibition of the evening. They will weigh in at 140 pounds. The fourth battle will be between Young Ward of Beloit, and an unknown from Milwaukee, the latter selection to be made by tomorrow.

The management promises the fight fans that there will be no delay between the bouts, and that it will be run on a clean basis. The services of Dan Hyde of Milwaukee, for referee, have been obtained.

Polka Originally Bohemian.

The polka came originally from Bohemia, where it has been danced by the peasants from time immemorial. Its introduction into fashionable society was due to Josef Nerrda, who saw a girl dancing it one Sunday afternoon in the market place of Elbeheim, and noted down the melody and steps.

HOG MARKET STEADY; DECLINE FOR SHEEP

Heavy Volume of Livestock Receipts on Monday Market Makes Trade Slower.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chicago, Feb. 16.—Heavy volume of receipts tended to make trade in livestock rather slow this morning. Hogs held well up to Saturday's average of prices, however, although sheep had a decline of ten cents and cattle trade was inclined to be slow.

Following are quotations:
Cattle—Receipts 25,000; market slow; heavy 7.00@9.50; Texas steers 6.80@8.00; western steers 6.60@7.50; stockers and feeders 5.30@8.00; cows and heifers 5.50@8.50; calves 7.50@10.50.

EDGERTON FIVE LOSE TO JANESVILLE TEAM

Visiting Five Composed of High School Players Lose to Cards Saturday Night 20 to 12.

Unable to play in their usual style of passing game on the big rink floor, the Edgerton Harps, composed of high school players were swamped by the Janesville Cardinals at the rink Saturday night, and at no time were the Edgerton players able to push the cards for the lead. Final score 20 to 12. On a smaller floor the score would undoubtedly have been closer for the visitors were unable to draw the ball within shooting distance with any degree of safety and busied up in their offensive play.

In the first half, the Cards outplayed their opponents by a safe margin and headed the Edgerton five by six points when the whistle blew. Williams and Blunk starred in this session, and the Harps had difficulty in locating the basket. In the second period, the Cardinals started to increase their lead, and Faltier who replaced Heller, played a formidable part in the team work. Sutton, forward for the Edgerton, aggregation soon got his stride and caged three goals.

Summary.
Edgerton—Sutton, McIntosh, Johnson, Hitchcock, forwards; Dawe, center; Sweeney and Whitford, guards.

Janesville—McElroy, McKeigue and Williams, forwards; Blunk, Brown and French guards; Heller and Faltier, center.
Baskets—Williams, 3; Sutton, 4; McElroy, 1; Faltier, 2; Heller, 1; McIntosh, 1; Dawe, 1.
Referee—Koch.
Halves—Twenty minutes.

WEATHER FORECAST

A barometric depression is moving through the western Canadian provinces and will probably cause somewhat warmer weather here tonight and Tuesday. It will continue fair, and the winds will be light and variable.

PUNGENT FACTS.

Governor McGovern spoke before the Twilight Club on Tuesday evening of last week, expounding his pet schemes for reducing the high cost of living and incidentally seeking to explain away the great increase in the state taxes. Many who heard him really expressed themselves as satisfied that he was correct in his position. It is certain that he has talked it enough to believe in it firmly by this time. But take a look over a few figures that perhaps Mr. McGovern in his anxiety to impress his audience with the truth of his statements perhaps overlooked. I do not mean to say he would misrepresent them but overlooked.

First I want to call your attention to the fact that in 1900 the population of the state of Wisconsin was 2,069,042. According to the last census in 1910 the population was 2,333,860. A most remarkable growth of more than three hundred thousand. Consider this and then what follows will explain why this is made especially prominent.

In 1900 the total disbursements for conducting state affairs was the grand total of $2,635,19.85. Stop and consider that this was when the Wisconsin Idea was being promoted. Its inception as it were. Now note the next ten years and what has happened. The population as you saw has not increased materially, but look at the total for the state expenses, $11,722,885.24. An increase of nine millions practically in state expenses and an increase in population of less than three hundred thousand.

But wait. Just cast your eyes on the total figures for 1912. Mind your population has not increased but look. The total figure is $13,290,520.54. How does that strike your eye? Do you begin to see light of day and wonder where it all went to? This in two years. That Wisconsin Idea, those Market commissions advocated by Governor McGovern and a few other similar commissions have eaten their way into your pocket books, your bank accounts. As McGovern said the people are to blame. It is the selection of men to go to the state legislature to make the laws that must be looked to.

Now let us take a few figures and review them briefly. In 1900 the charitable and penal institutions of the state cost $894,515.06 to run. Ten years later in 1910 they had increased to $1,111,829.55. But two years later $1,206,843.90. But we must be an enlightened people. Here is the growth of the free library commission. In 1900 they cost but $3,643.44. In 1910 they had grown to $34,176.53 and in 1912 to the sum of $48,676.51. But here we come to the greatest of all the political expenses of the whole list. The list that made possible the expansion of the Wisconsin Idea, the Fish and Game Warden. In 1900, when they were just beginning to be used as a political machine they cost the state $2,981.18. A modest sum. But their value was seen, their work, in 1910 and out of season appreciated and in 1910 we find that they cost $6,674.54. Not so bad but wait. In 1912 the cost $19,161.24. There you have it in cold figures. Reform is costly is it not?

We now come to the tax commission. In 1900 it cost but $17,025.11 to conduct the business of this work of the state. It grew somewhat during the ten years and reached $47,012.91 and it took but two years to over double this amount and reach the grand total of $112,509.72, and in 1913 it had gone to $165,366.11. The Dairy and Food commission has been more modest in its growth from $12,130.25 in 1900 to $45,913.88 in 1910 and $48,849.22 in 1912. The State Historical fund is also modest in its totals, $14,811 in 1900, but $36,125.01 in 1910 and $48,675.51 in 1912.

These are figures taken at random from the annual reports. They do not include the details of the special cost of the University or the famous railway commission, which bring the total up to the totals given showing the remarkable increase in the state expenses but are part of that figure, not extras. This is where the money has gone? The cost of the state capital is also not included in these figures, except in totals or other miscellaneous expenses too numerous to mention.

If the tax payer wants to know where his taxes go he does not have to look far. The Wisconsin Idea must be exploited and it costs money to advertise any business. Some men pay it out in newspapers. Some donate millions to charity and others create world impressions, lead blinded following and gain widespread notoriety. It all costs money no matter which way is taken and the tax payer in this case is paying bill.

BOOST THE FAIR.

Residents of Rock county as well as of Janesville now have an opportunity of boosting the fair proposition. The project has gone beyond the suggestion stage and nearly the sum needed has been contributed so it is an assured fact. Since the purchase of the old fair grounds by the Park Association the question of holding a fair here in connection with the annual race meet, has been seriously discussed. It appears now that it will be an annual feature in Janesville life. With a three day race program, with the best horses in the middle west competing for the various purses, with excellent exhibits, good clean attractions and a night and day program, the fair should draw from all the surrounding country. The directors of the Park Association will finish their canvas of the city during the next few days and it is to be hoped they will be successful. It is not alone a Janesville project but one which every resident of Rock county should be interested in. It will be an aid to the Rock County fair held at Evansville by bringing to this section of the country first class exhibits—so get together and boost.

CLEAN THE WALKS.

There should be a general enforcement of the city ordinances to keep the walks clean. There is nothing that gives a worse impression to a stranger than slovenly kept walks in the winter. There is nothing that is more dangerous to the pedestrians than dirty walks. The city has an ordinance that orders all property owners to clean their walks but there are many who never make the pretense of even having a narrow path shoveled from the first snow until the last spring thaw. It should be some official's duty to see that these ordinances are obeyed and perhaps if some of our present officials could be pried away from steam heated offices of the city hall long enough for a brisk walk through the various wards it might result in a lot of good.

It is up to the Janesville business and professional men to contribute to the proposed fair if it is to be an accomplished fact. The members of the board of directors of the Park Association have done yeoman service thus far and have raised over two-thirds of the sum needed, but the remainder must be forthcoming if the venture is to be successful. It is something that will be a lasting benefit to the whole county, so it is well worth assisting just at this time.

This taxation problem is one of the most troublesome that the reformers of Wisconsin have discovered for years. It is keeping their experts busy explaining. When the income tax assessors met in Madison two years ago for instruction they were told by Prof. Adams, a member of the tax commission to "Get out and get the money," they did it and now Adams is explaining all about it and putting the blame on the legislators.

John Aylward of Madison is paving the way for the democratic state campaign by talking at one o'clock lunch clubs about taxation and how the appropriations for the various state institutions, such as the university and others must be curtailed if the taxes are to be reduced. None of the speakers thus far have dared to come out openly and demand the abolishment of the various commissions as a whole but it will come later.

An Indiana clergyman, with an eye to the women members of his congregation or fear of his own best half, told a Washington conference that Solomon was wise because of his three hundred wives. There are lots of men who are in state prison for having two, who feel that it would show more wisdom on their part if they had but one or perhaps none at all.

The progressive democrats and republicans are terming the Darlington gathering of thinking men and tax payers, as a stalwart convention. They fail to read the handwriting on the wall of "Turn the spendthrifts out" or rather they do not want to read and prefer to institute it is merely a political move by disgruntled republicans.

Madison is to have another evening newspaper to start within a short time. In politics it is to be democratic and not socialist as is the present evening publication. In name it is to be called the Madisonian and it is to be edited by men who have grown old in the business of publishing newspapers.

Speaking about elections, how about our own city elections which come very soon. There is little or no interest displayed thus far but it is to be hoped that good strong candidates will appear in the field before the time is up.

Illinois is to have its first test of state wide suffrage and the April election will tell the story the average politician fears. It is going to be an excellent test for the proposition anyway.

Down in Milwaukee they wake up the judge, hold court in jail, to bring in a verdict of not guilty of a man accused of murder. It takes the Cream City to hand out justice in a hurry.

President Wilson promised to keep his hands off the Illinois senatorial fight, but he made two promises regarding Mr. Bryan's coat tails when he went after Robert Sullivan's scalp.

Candidate Roethe was too smooth to purchase patent leather or even victrola for his campaign shoes. He chose good old cow hide that will stand the wear and tear.

One of the mistakes of antiquity is that St. Valentine failed to form a mail order business with the immense amount of correspondence he has established.

Perhaps those robins that were reported observed some weeks ago were in reality sparrows. However, no one has as yet reported picking berries.

If Rockefeller feels that he has been unjustly dealt with by the Ohio tax collectors, he might move to Wisconsin and then he would have cause to complain.

Japan has produced a new kind of lemon and it looks as though Uncle Sam was to have the first bite of it to see if it is as good as the old variety.

Mothers' day is all right, but when it comes to March 7th, hens' day, as they have down in Missouri, it looks like discrimination against us roosters.

It looks as though Johnny Evers was going to be casus belli before the base ball season fairly begins. John always was a stormy petrel.

There is too much partisan politics in this brand of February weather to suit even the old timer who loved a merry campaign.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Sanitary Age.

We're using sanitary cups when we go on the train. We're never going to let those micro-organisms east on us again. We boil our drinking water and we filter it as well. Just when a germ is going to bite is mighty hard to tell. We've knocked out all the roller towels, the public brush and comb. Has been placed on the taboo list wherever you may roam.

The sanitary washrags are the only kind we'll use. To wash with common old hand soap we stoutly do refuse. We cannot kiss the babies now, sweethearts are also barred. Dan Cupid under these new rules finds sledding mighty hard.

We'll eat no tarty candy that's displayed on public stands. And some of us have got so scared we've even stopped shaking hands. All paper money is tabooed for it spreads grim disease.

We must stay far away from those that cough or even sneeze. We must have outdoor sleeping rooms and sanitary beds.

And all else that may be thought up in scientific heads. We've got to be so careful that it takes all of our time. To keep the germs from sending us to some much warmer clime.

But, with all our new fangled schemes the busy germs to foil. Folks seem to keep on shuffling off this sad old mortal coil.

An Automobile Auction.

An old farmer in the central part of the state has pulled off an auction all by himself without consulting a professional auctioneer. He was kind enough, however, to send the professional auctioneer the advance notice of the auction which was in part as follows.

"Auction—The undersigned, intending to commit suicide will sell at auction at his farm all his worldly belongings to wit:

"One Maltese cow, slightly damaged.

"Eight brown Leghorn pigs with golden hair.

"One solid fashioned buckswag with full directions for using, in four languages.

"One triple expansion, patent lever bicycle with full jeweled mud guards.

"One sulky plow, very sulky and slightly balky.

"One Berkshire wheelbarrow with ball bearings geared to 120, can trot, pace or gallop.

"One Cherry Black jassack with good once countenance and splendid physique.

"Two fine double breasted cupboards, fescue lined, also two fine hand painted handsheds, with automatic cutoff. One family dog, faithful and used to tramp and Indians.

"Five goats, two of which are Williams with red whiskers."

Bridge.

She lingered at the bridge till midnight. The clock was striking the hour. Her husband stayed home with the children.

His face was a vision of sour. He was mired at his wife's ambition. To gather the sordid pelt. He'd a date at a poker party. And wanted some dough himself.

Valuable Hint.

When gasoline is used to remove a spot from clothing a ring is often left around where the spot has been. A little salt in the gasoline will overcome this, leaving no trace of the soiled spot.

Hard to Steer Proper Course.

If you praise yourself your own little world, which thinks it knows you, will mock and gibe at you for a boaster, while if you say you have a poor opinion of yourself it will gladly take you at your own low valuation.

Lyric and Majestic Theaters

Hughie Mack, three hundred pounds of jolly good humor—imagine him in kilts! See him tonight in the uproarious comedy "Scotland Forever." And whether you are interested in automobile races or not, see Earl Cooper, the famous driver, in "The Winner Wins," a Vitagraph embodying a mighty thrilling race. Other Licensed photoplays too, of course, and some Mexican War pictures by Pathe.

Alice Joyce, Mary Fuller, and Anita Stewart—all three of them tomorrow. Miss Joyce appears in the two-part Kalem "The Hand Print Mystery." Miss Fuller plays in the first of the "Dolly of the Dailies" series of newspaper stories, this one, a comedy, entitled "The Perfect Truth." And Miss Stewart appears, supported by Ralph Ince and other Vitagraph players, in the comedy "The Lucky elopement."

Miss Stewart and Mr. Ince will appear next Sunday in "Lincoln the Lover," in which we promise you a really remarkable production. A great many players have tried to impersonate Lincoln, but Mr. Ince is the only one who has made a real success of it.

The first of the Tribune's "Best Stories" comes Thursday, "The Dilemma," by Biograph players. Dorothy Kelly also appears on that day in "Marrying Sue."

"The Adventures of Kathlyn," are continued Saturday, with "The Temple of the Lion."

A novel way of fishing among Chinamen is with a net and clapper. The net is stretched on a light bamboo frame in the shape of a truncated pyramid. The fisherman either sits in a boat or wades in the shallows, striking the water with the wooden clapper, which frightens the fish into the net.

SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE MOST ENCOURAGING

TOTAL OF TWELVE THOUSAND DOLLARS RAISED FOR FAIR PROJECT.

COMMITTEE AT WORK

Every Resident of Rock County Will Be Given Opportunity To Take Stock in Park Association.

"You might state for the board of directors of the Park Association if you will," said John C. Nichols, president of the association, "that the directors feel much encouraged over the generous response that they have been given to their appeal for stock subscriptions to the association for the purpose of holding a fair here next August. We would also like to have it understood that the subscription of stock is not confined to Janesville men alone and that any resident of the county is welcome to become a member and help boost the project. This proposed fair is going to be a big thing for the county as a whole. The Evansville fair, usually held the week following the three-day race affair here in August, will be materially benefited by the Janesville fair. It is for the whole county and a little later we are going to have a mass meeting at which the farming community will be asked to be present, to explain our plans more fully. Meanwhile we are finishing up the stock subscription in the city."

Mr. Nichols voices the sentiment of the rest of the board of directors in his remarks. The active soliciting committee composed of John Souman, Frank Crook and Harry Nowlan, have devoted several days already to the work and are ready to give more of their time to assure the success of the fair. Up to noon today some twelve thousand dollars had been subscribed in stock out of the fifteen thousand that it is estimated is necessary to construct the new barns, enlarge the grand stand and make other improvements needed before a fair can be held.

When the legislative committee, examining possible sites for the state fair, came to Janesville, they expressed surprise that with such advantages as such a location, in the very heart of the city, that Janesville did not have an annual fair. Now the Park Association has taken charge of this matter, such a fair is assured and every citizen interested in bringing people to Janesville should subscribe, is the way the committee put it to the possible investors.

Secretary Putnam reports that if the fair project is carried through, it will mean better horses will be entered for the three-day race, and more horses will be trained here during the spring and early summer months. Already the indications are that the present stable capacity will be more than taxed and new barns are a necessity whether the fair was to have been held or not. The committee hopes to finish up their work in a day or two.

ANOTHER PAPER ROAD STARTED TO MADISON BY THE PROMOTERS

Dispatch From Capital City Says New Corporation Has Filed Articles for Constructing Inter-urban.

Another "paper" interurban has been projected between Madison and Janesville. The name of this last proposed road is the Madison and Janesville Traction Company. One of the promoters is Gustave Hayward, who had an office in the Hayes block for some time last year and whose engineering party ran a supposed line to Madison via Edgerton and Sutherland. At that time it was said the Rogers Park Construction Company of Chicago was behind the project, and stock subscriptions were solicited of farmers along the right of way. However, this new deal is apparently a continuation of the other project and will be financed differently. The Madison dispatch is as follows:

Articles of incorporation of a proposed interurban line to be built between Madison and Janesville will be filed with the secretary of state this week. It will be backed in part by local capital and in part by railroad and insurance companies. The name of the proposed company is the Madison and Janesville Traction Company. The preliminary corporation papers give it a stock of $25,000, and the incorporators are: Gustave Hayward, J. W. Poper, J. H. Auby and A. W. Schoellkopf of this city. Elmore T. Elver, the local attorney for the company, says the road is backed by business interests in Janesville and is a part of the system of which the new line from Beloit to Elkhorn and Whitewater is a part. He predicts that work on the new line will be started early in the spring.

CHANGES PROCEDURE IN PROBATE MATTER

Judge Fifield Makes New Rule With Reference to Interstate Estates.

Judge Charles L. Fifield has announced to Rock county attorneys a change of procedure with reference to interstate estates which shall henceforth apply in the probate court.

County Court Rule No. 19 provides that assignment of the residue shall be made "until the testimony of one or more creditable witnesses taken upon examination in open court or upon deposition of reduced to writing and filed" as to the heirs. This rule which has been strictly adhered to in other counties has not been so carefully followed in Rock county. In some counties it has been the rule to take the testimony of the heirs before the administration proceedings when it is easily obtainable. On consultation with attorneys who happen to appear in the local court Judge Fifield has decided to adopt the latter plan. He has held preliminary hearings upon petition for administration attorneys must have witnesses present at the time fixed for hearing to prove the heirs of the decedent and the value of the property. Judge Fifield will also ask such proof on issuing certificate of heirship.

At the special February court term which is called tomorrow, February 17, there will be heard three cases on the calendar. They are as follows:

Wills—Rufus A. Barr, William R. Leng, Marguerita Feibler.

Claims—William W. Althby, Mary Johnson, Amanda Holmes, Jane M. Dustin.

Sale of Real Estate—Leta Turner.

Termination of Bond—George H. Leavitt.

Account—Matt Onsager, James Gibson, Prudence Hersey, Hiram G. Atwood, Jeremiah Crowley, Charles P. Swenson, William H. Mosher, Rexaville Brand, William Mendez, Maggie Withers, Charles E. Sinnott, Leta Turner, Philander T. Barrett.

Inheritance Tax—Fred Man.

DEBATERS LOST AT MADISON SATURDAY; MAY FILE PROTEST

Local Negative Speakers Have Just Cause for Losing 2 to 1 Decision.

The Janesville negative debating trio, who journeyed to Madison Saturday, where they met the Capital City high school affirmative team, were defeated 2 to 1, after one of the most spirited contests ever held in Madison. The question discussed was: Resolved, that the literacy test is the desirable method in further restricting foreign immigration into the United States.

Through a misunderstanding on the part of the Madison debaters and their principal and coaches concerning the time for the last rebuttal speech, the local team have a right to protest the debate, and force Madison into a contest later in the season. According to the Beloit College League constitution, which laws govern the debates, it is stated that the final rebuttal speeches in each instance shall be five minutes, the local debaters feel that they were deprived of a possible chance to win, when Principal Jones of the Madison high school, informed the time, preceding the debate, that the time for the negative rebuttal was for rebuttal speeches. When Dearborn, Janesville's last speaker, was in the fever heat of his closing speech, he was interrupted at the end of three minutes. He began to speak again, but was interrupted again, which forced him to give up his summary, and several important points, which he was answering with great force.

Howard Eaton opened the affirmative argument for Madison. He contended that the next logical step in evolution of today is the new literacy test. The affirmative outline was given with the distinguished difference between the illiterates and the literates.

Russell Smiley opened the negative arguments. He contended that the illiterates were not the insane, and not the inferior class of people. The remainder of the debate was close, each speaker attempting to stick to the wording of the question. For Janesville, Allen Dearborn was the best speaker. He delivered an excellent oratory and hammered his opponent's arguments back home. Russell Smiley hesitated at times in his main speech, but his rebuttal was about the best prepared of the entire set of speakers. Stanley Horwood, the locals' second speaker, was a decided improvement over last year. His voice was rich, and it carried well during his speech. For Madison, Otto Myrland was the most forceful speaker.

The indices for the evening were: D. O. Kinsman, Whitewater Normal; J. L. Parbush, Beloit College; and Prof. R. E. Way, Beloit College. A good-sized crowd, numbering about seventy-five, attended the debate. Prof. J. T. Sutherland accompanied the local trio to Madison Saturday.

COLONEL GOETHALS, "THE MAN AT THE HELM."

Colonel George W. Goethals, Chairman and Chief Engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, read and corrected all of the chapters relating to the construction of the canal in the new book, "The Panama Canal," by Frederic J. Haskin, now being offered to the readers of The Janesville Gazette at cost to manufacture. Colonel Goethals requested Mr. Haskin not to write anything about his own part in the construction of the canal. But Mr. Haskin felt that to comply with such a request would be to fail to tell the whole story, so a chapter under the heading, "The Man at the Helm," was incorporated. Needless to say, it was not read by Colonel Goethals. Nevertheless, those who have read the book believe it to be one of the most interesting and one of the most informing chapters in the entire work, since it shows exactly how Colonel Goethals "bossed" the biggest job on earth.

ALBERT LAWSON DIES SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Prominent Citizen Passes Away After An Illness of Over a Year's Duration.

On Sunday evening, shortly after six, the spirit of Albert Lawson, one of Janesville's prominent business men, passed to the world beyond after an illness of over a year's duration. Mr. Lawson was sixty-seven years of age, having been born in Burlington, England, on the 24th day of May, 1847. For the past fifteen years he had been a resident of Janesville, being at the time of his death, president and practical owner of the Janesville Wholesale Grocery company, one of the city's leading enterprises.

Mr. Lawson came to the United States when but a child, and at the age of five moved to Massachusetts, where he resided for many years. Later he became a salesman for the Beloit Wholesale Grocery company, moving to Sumner, Mass., where he resided for many years. During this period he resided in Rockford for many years, moving from that city to Janesville, where he organized the Janesville Wholesale Grocery, of which he became an active partner and later practically owning the entire stock of the company.

A year ago Mr. Lawson was taken ill and for many weeks his life was despaired of, but he rallied and while not recovering his health, has been an invalid since. Up to the end he retained an active interest in his business affairs and matters of civic interest. At the time of his death he was a member of the Rock County National Bank and the Rock County Savings and Trust company.

Besides a widow, Mrs. Evaline G. Lawson, two daughters, Miss Blanche G. Lawson and Mrs. Walter B. Atwood, daughters by a former marriage and one grandson, Allen Lawson Atwood, are left to mourn his loss. At the request of many friends, the funeral will be held on Tuesday from twelve until two, when all who may wish to pay their last respects may do so at the family residence, 221 South Third street. The funeral services will be held on Wednesday at two-thirty from his late residence, Rev. Joseph Hazen of the Baptist church and Rev. Henry Willmann of the Trinity Episcopal church officiating.

Mr. Lawson's death is a direct loss to the community and the city of his adoption. He was a sterling business man and during his long career of over half a century he has made many friends who unite their expressions of sorrow to those left behind to mourn his loss.

EVANSVILLE GIRL WEDS ILLINOIS MAN

Miss Maude Gillies Was United In Marriage Saturday Afternoon to Harry Spooner of Oak Park.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Evansville, Feb. 16.—Married Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, at the bride's home, Miss Maude Gillies of this city, daughter of W. W. Gillies, to Harry Spooner of Oak Park, Ill. Dr. Eaton of Beloit officiated, using the impressive ring service, which was witnessed by about fifty relatives and friends of the families. The house was tastefully decorated with southern smilax and roses, the color scheme being green and white. The bride was beautifully gowned in a dress of white shadow lace over crepe de meteor, she wore a veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. The couple was unattended, the bride being given away by her father. After the ceremony and congratulations, a delicious two-course dinner was served.
The bride is one of Evansville's most popular young ladies. She was a graduate of the Evansville high school and a graduate nurse, and has been prominent in church and social circles. The groom is also very popular among the young people here. The couple left for Chicago Saturday night and expect to be at home near Evansville after a brief honeymoon.
May Orrin and Evelyn Bishop pleasantly entertained about twenty friends at the Evansville House Friday evening at a Valentine party. Music and games made the evening pass all too soon. Refreshments were served and all report a very pleasant time.

DOLLAR DAY

Wednesday, February 25

Dollar Day is the result of a plan conceived by the Gazette Advertising Department in collaboration with the merchants of Janesville. The idea being that the merchants unite on one day to offer the public and opportunity to buy remnants of their winter stocks at prices as low as can be made.

No matter how careful a merchant may choose his stock, at the end of the season he will find a certain amount of LEFT OVERS that for some reason have not been sold. In QUALITY, STYLE AND PRICE they are the equal of his BEST SELLERS. The only thing at fault with these goods is that THEY HAVE NOT BEEN SOLD

But two courses are open. The price may be cut to a point where they will sell or they can be carried over to another season. No merchant wishes to carry over goods. Therefore, at the end of each season one price reduction follows another until the stocks are clean.

Marks the Final Price Reduction

It is the grand finale of all sales that have preceded it, and if prices look so low that they seem hardly reliable, remember that they probably represent the last desperate effort of some merchant to sell you merchandise far below cost to him rather than carry it into another season.

Gazette Special Dollar Day Edition, Monday, February 23rd

Special committee on death of K. K. Newhouse submitted the following:

Whereas K. K. Newhouse died suddenly on the 14th day of July, 1913, a member of this board, as a mark of respect to his memory let it be

Resolved, That we remember him with respect and pleasure as one of our associates. We found him able and conscientious in his work, honest and fair in his dealings with us, a man of good judgment with strong convictions and the courage to stand by what he seemed right. As a public official he was faithful in the discharge of his duties, as a friend loyal and true. In his death we feel this board has lost a valued member and the community a citizen of real worth.

Let this be spread upon the minutes of the board and a copy thereof sent to the family of our departed member.

JOHN KEOUGH, M. P. RICHARDSON, To the County Board of Supervisors of Rock County:

Your committee appointed to present suitable resolutions on the death of Hon. J. W. Sale, County Judge of Rock County, respectfully report as follows:

That, Whereas, for more than a quarter of a century Judge Sale presided over the County Court of this County in the Court House in the City of Janesville in a room near that in which this Board has met and the Board, as well as the citizens of Rock County generally, have had the benefit of his counsel and advice during all these years and he has departed from us full of years and honors.

Resolved, That in his death the County has lost one of the most conscientious and capable public servants that ever served it and the people an honored counselor and friend who was ever faithful to the trust imposed in him and ever found at his post performing the duties of his office; that he was a strong, fearless, kindly and impartial Judge, who put the performance of his public duties above all other considerations.

Resolved Further, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Board and that a copy thereof be transmitted by the Clerk to the Judge's family.

M. P. RICHARDSON, JOHN KEOUGH, Committee.

Supervisor Simon Smith moved that resolutions on death of Judge Sale and K. K. Newhouse be adopted by a rising vote.

Adopted unanimously.

AMUSEMENTS

THE APOLLO THEATRE.

The "House of Mystery," a four reel photo play, will be shown at the Apollo Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

Andrew Garfield, a banker, learns of his son's death, whom he had disowned, and regrets his action. He locates his son's widow and child through a newspaper ad but a neighboring family takes advantage of the widow's lack of clothes and install themselves in the house and proceed to rob the banker after making the widow and child prisoners. A great detective is called to solve the many mysterious happenings and soon gets on the trail, but is recognized and warned. He places a dummy in his bed and captures his would-be murderers, but they escape but not before an automatic camera has taken a picture of them. A thrilling chase sets in in which the thieves are always successful. The banker and detective are confined in a cellar and a secret machine is set in motion, flooding the place with sand. The detective releases a carrier pigeon which brings the police and the rogues are jailed and the family is united.

ish the drawing qualities of this, the best of the Broadhurst dramas.

"Bought and Paid For" is really a remarkable play. The entire action is centered in, and fully carried out, by the four chief characters. There does not seem to be a superfluous word in the book. The play moves along in direct path, the humorous portion being as essential to the telling of the serious part as are the strong scenes of the drama. There is no dragged in comic relief, so-called. The fun is human and real.

"Bought and Paid For" ran fifteen months at the Playhouse, New York; six months at the Princess Theatre, Chicago; and over six months at the New Theatre, London, England.

Seats are on sale for the engagement. It is evident that no mistake was made in booking "Bought and Paid For" for Myers Theatre Thursday, Feb. 19.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A QUEER IDEA OF GOD.

THE little boy was very sleepy and wanted to say his prayers in bed. Instead of on his knees as he had been most properly taught to do, he lay on his back and said, "But if you don't get out of bed and say your prayers on your knees, Robert, God will be angry with you, and maybe he'll make it rain tomorrow and you won't be able to go to school." He wanted very much to go to school, and he didn't like to run the risk of being scolded by his mother, and so with a scowl on his face he tumbled out of bed and hastily assuming the proper attitude, launched himself into prayer.

His mother was evidently satisfied, but had she reason to be? Wouldn't it have been almost better for the little boy to say his prayers in bed than to have been cowed into saying them on his knees by fear of a God who would be angry at him if he didn't?

It seems to me that some of the ideas and superstitions which we hold about God are almost insulting to Him.

I have heard it said that God made man in His own image, and man then created God in his. It is certainly true that as water cannot rise above its own level, so our conception of God cannot rise above the level of our finite imagination. But surely it ought not to fall below that level. Surely we ought to realize that God is more compassionate, more tender, more ever kind and more wonderful than the best men we ever knew or could imagine. And yet some people seem to be in a God who is scarcely as kind or just as a good man.

A Scotchman once repeated to me an interesting little anecdote which his mother told him about Ian MacLaren.

Ian MacLaren (Dr. Watson) was a Presbyterian minister, but he was very liberal. One day he was arguing with a good old hell-fire and brimstone deacon about infant damnation. Dr. Watson pointed out to him that if he didn't think God was at least as good as man, he asked, "I know, I know," said the old Presbyterian, "if not a trifle better, emotion, 'but I'm tellin' ye' sir, that the Almighty, in His official and judicial character, He must be mightily ashamed of His private and personal character. Of course, we all laugh at the minister's explanation, and yet don't many of us entertain superstitions about God which make Him out as an 'official and judicial' abstraction, doing many things which any normal human being would be ashamed of.

from an ideal place to masticate a delicacy of angel food cake or any other delicacy that you might select? Suppose that all of this accumulation should be loosened at once in your mouth, would you consent to swallow it, or would you consign it to the garbage can where it belongs? Now who is to blame for this unhealthy condition in your mouth? The answer is easy of solution. Had you been giving your mouth the ordinary month hygiene precaution this condition of affairs would never have happened. A mouth in this condition is ideal for germ life. It favors the retention of those micro-organisms of diphtheria, scarlet fever, tuberculosis and many other diseases. The purpose of the sanitary drinking fountain and the sanitary drinking cups is prevention of mouth infection. If one with an unclean mouth is talking at close range enough for another to get some of their germ laden breath, they are in danger of becoming infected, particularly if they have sore or bleeding gums. Coughing and sneezing often carries the germs to a number of people all at once. Again the swallowing of so many of these germs while eating with an unclean mouth is responsible for much of the auto-intoxication that upsets in general, lowers one's vitality and makes one more susceptible to disease. They are over loaded with poisons that the system cannot eliminate fast enough.

Ignorance and indifference are largely responsible for most of the diseased mouth conditions, and the fact that many of the detrimental effects may be slow in developing makes the question of public oral hygiene education more difficult for absorption by the public. Oral hygiene is the one particular branch of hygiene where individual effort will in so many ways show dividends on the investment. Such benefits as cleanliness in mastication, a feeling of cleanliness of the mouth, improvement in personal appearance, the minimizing of pain and the associated troubles and reduction of expense for both medical and dental services, but the most important is the increased efficiency of the individual. Thousands of natural teeth are practically ruined each year by allowing this lime deposit to accumulate on the teeth. Daily care could have prevented this accumulation and added several years to the life and serviceability of these same teeth. This accumulation is about as round as a ball, and is as hard as sand paper and is continually irritating the gums; causes them to shrink away from the irritation leaving room for tartar to collect and more shrinkage again and of course more tartar, finally the teeth drop out and are lost.

To preserve your teeth and gums in a natural state by daily cleanliness is a duty you owe to yourself. No one is going to do it for you, so it is up to you or pay the penalty.

THE TABLE.

Meringue — Whites of two eggs sugar, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice for one-quarter teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat the whites until stiff, add the sugar gradually and continue beating, then add the flavoring.

Hard Sugar — Three-quarters cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, three-quarters cup of milk, five cups of flour, three-quarters tablespoonful of baking powder, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, three-quarters tablespoonful of ginger. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, milk, and dry ingredients mixed and sifted. Put some of the mixture on an inverted dish, pan and roll as thinly as possible to cover pan. Mark the dough with a coarse grater. Sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven. Before removing from the pan cut in strips four and one-half inches long by one and one-half inches wide.

Sponge Fritters — Two and two-thirds cups of flour, one-third cup of sugar, seven-eighths cup of scalded milk, one-third yeast cake dissolved in two tablespoonsful of lukewarm water, one-third cup of melted butter, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, grated rind of one-half lemon, quince marmalade, currant jelly. Make a cake, let rise to double its bulk. Add rind, currant jelly and quince marmalade. Brush the top with milk. Shape with a small biscuit cutter the remaining ingredients and let rise again. Toss on a floured board, (first dipped in flour), cover and let rise on the board. Take each piece and flatten in the center to form a nest. In one-half of the pieces put one-half teaspoonful of currant jelly and quince marmalade mixed in the proportion of one part jelly to two parts marmalade. Brush with milk the edges of filled pieces. Cover with unfilled pieces and press the edges closely together with the fingers first dipped in flour. If this is not carefully done the fritters will separate in frying. Fry in deep hot oil and drain on brown paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Toasted Marshmallows — One tablespoonful of granulated gelatin, one cup of boiling water, one cup of sugar, whites of three eggs, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of vanilla marmalade. Dissolve the gelatin in boiling water, add the sugar and as soon as dissolved set the bowl containing the mixture in a pan of ice water, then add the whites of the eggs and the vanilla and beat until the mixture thickens. Turn into a shallow pan, first dipped in cold water, and let stand until thoroughly chilled. Remove from the pan and cut in pieces the size and shape of marshmallows; then roll in macarons which have been dried and rolled. Serve with sugar and cream.

Bean and Tomato Soup — Soak a quart of beans for eight hours. Drain and soak an hour longer in warm water. Drain and put into a soup pot with a gallon of cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Add a half pound of fat salt pork, chopped, two sliced onions and a bay leaf. Let all simmer gently for four hours. At the end of that time run and press the soup through a sieve and return it to the pot with a quart of canned tomatoes, seasoned and sweetened with two teaspoonfuls of granulated sugar. Boil for half an hour, strain the soup through a colander and return to the fire, while you thicken it with a tablespoonful of flour rubbed into the same quantity of butter. Boil up once and serve.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. To clean steel knives, take a piece of board ten inches long and six inches wide. Tack on to this a piece of brussels carpet and sprinkle with fine emery. Rub the knives on this and they will clean with little labor. A tablespoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meat is boiled sponges out one-half of the fat, sugar, milk and cream and the yeast will make it deliciously tender. Fried food should not be allowed to become chilled before serving. To make new potatoes scrape easily and also to prevent the hands

Better Biscuits Baked With

Did it ever occur to you to find that all of a sudden your teeth were loose or wiggly? And did it recall to your mind that you had not done anything towards keeping your mouth clean for so long that you cannot remember when you did do anything? And did you take a mirror and look to see how loose they really were, and find that you could hardly tell if what you were looking at were really teeth at all or lumps of the thick accumulations of lime or tartar deposit, as well as many other accumulations that were displayed to your eyes? Did it not appear to you that your mouth was far

The Kitchen Cabinet

WHEN a fellow knows his business, he doesn't have to explain to people that he does. It isn't what a man knows but what he thinks he knows that he brags about. Big talk means little knowledge.

STUDY OF CHOCOLATE.

The great excuse for lack of training along the lines of household economics in our country and village schools is of course untrained teachers and lack of equipment. The first requisite will be an interested teacher. This training may come from reading, if in no other way, and it is indeed a poor school which has no facilities for boiling water. The ideal instruction nowadays is that which takes what the child knows and builds on and adds to that knowledge. What could be more interesting in connection with the geography lesson when studying the countries where the cacao tree grows, to enlarge on that knowledge, for the language lesson or for writing; then at the noon hour make a pot of cocoa, teach the girls as well as the boys how to make it well? An ordinary box stove may be the means of starting many a girl with the right teacher for an inspirer on the road to a broad knowledge of household economics.

Our own country was the first to use this wonderful bean; in Mexico, years before we were discovered, the natives prepared it by mixing with the ripe, ground bean, spices and corn meal. This was before pure food laws were in force.

The seeds were ground into rich oily paste and pressed and dried in cakes.

Chocolate Cup Custards — Heat a quart of milk, beat four eggs and add five tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour this scalded milk slowly over the eggs, beating all the time. Add five tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate and pour the custard into cups set in water; steam on the top of the stove or bake in the oven, always remembering to keep plenty of water around the cups. When the custard begins to set, remove the cups, set them into cold water, which will drive the heat to the center.

Tuberculosis in Europe. From one-tenth to one-fourth of the total mortality of Europe is caused by tuberculosis. The approximate number of deaths in each million of the population from tuberculosis in certain countries is given as follows: Russia, 4,000; Austria-Hungary, 3,500; France, 3,000; Germany, 2,200; Holland, 1,800; Italy, 1,800; Scotland, 1,700; England, 1,400.

Origin Not to Be Traced. Outside of Ulster the Irish are mainly of Celtic stock, but their origin is lost in antiquity.

Women Worth While

MADAME DUMBA.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)

Not many women would cross an ocean to plant a garden. Madame Dumba does not consider it in the least an extraordinary thing to do. When the first buds peep the young wife of the ambassador from Austria-Hungary to the United States intends to run over to Austria, do her spring gardening, and return to America to spend the summer here with her husband.

In the drawing room of Madame Dumba in Washington is a dainty water color of old Schloss Vestein. The little painting shows a stately castle, back of which rise purple mountains that have stood sentinel throughout the centuries. It is this castle, begun in the eleventh century, added to until the sixteenth century, that is the home of Ambassador and Madame Dumba. It is one hour and a half by motor from Vienna. In the primeval forests of the estate wild deer and other animals roam at will. The beautiful gardens of the castle are Madame Dumba's special delight. Every one, as Madame Dumba says, wants to feel that he has a home. And she and her husband have come to look upon this purpose of the Swedish, Italian and old castle, with its stately chapel and

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last summer I met a young man at the summer resort where I was staying. He appeared very chivalrous and I often took walks with him. He said he was a student at the university and he wouldn't ask me to let him make love to me. At first I refused, but as I was very lonely, I was very affectionate all summer and promised to marry him when I returned to the city. I haven't heard from him since I returned and I am nearly distracted. I find I had learned to love him. I do not sleep well and have no interest in anything. Do you think he is spying me for my actions last summer? Please advise me, as I have not confided in anyone but you so far, and never shall. BROWNIE.

A man always gets tired of a girl who is "easy." This young man has had all the fun he wanted with you and now he has dropped you. I am sorry for you, little girl, but you are only getting what is coming to every girl who forgets her modesty.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy seventeen years of age. I go with a girl of fifteen. I like her very much and I think she does me, but there are two more boys she likes pretty well and that makes me jealous. What would you advise me to do? I have been going with her for nearly a year. Her mother does not object to me seeing her.

DAVE.

She is too young to be very constant, my boy. Besides, she ought to know other boys and like them, too, just as you ought to know other girls and like them. Both of you are too young to act like lovers. So be sensible, Dave; stay friends with the girl and don't try to "hog" her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 18. There is a boy of 17, and he often asks me to go out with him. He is good looking. I like him, but my mother told him I was too young to go with him, yet he loves me, as he says he will wait until I am both of age, so do you think that my mother is telling me right?

My dear little girl, Mother is right. When you are as old as she is, and have a daughter sixteen years old, you will know how right she is. I am quite sure the boy is a nice boy, but he also is too young to know exactly the kind of girl he can love all his life. Be friendly with him, but don't think of him or any other boy as a lover until you are at least two years older.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Does a boy

A HEALTHY, HAPPY WIFE is the greatest inspiration a man can have and the life of the family, yet how many homes in this fair land are blighted by the ill health of wife and mother?

It may be backaches, headaches, the torture of a displaced uterus, some ailment peculiar to her sex which makes life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs to restore her to health and happiness.

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

Two men were returning from their day's work. One was talking in very emphatic tones: "I tell you if my woman voted I'd want to turn her out; can't see no sense in 'woun-buttin' in where they don't belong. Home is where a woman belongs."

"Easy! Easy!" said his companion, "the way the thing looks our women will be voting as well as ourselves before long," said the quieter man of the two.

"When my wife goes out to vote she can forget to come back," said the first speaker. "I will never favor women mixing up in things they know nothing about; if they do the work that is theirs to do they will find their hands full."

They passed on out of hearing, each going home after a day spent in honest toil, two of nature's noblemen who did not want their wives to vote. If they do the work that is theirs to do they will find their hands full. That little expression strikes twelve clear and true. If a woman does the work that the creator intended her to do she will surely have her hands full and often find herself wishing for an extra pair to aid her in the task.

We take it that the work meant for women is to be a man's wife; the mother of his children. To be a successful wife and mother is a higher job than being president! The president can step down and out after four or eight years and if he chooses he may rest from his arduous labors. Not so with mother; from the day she lies weak, tired, happy with her first-born in her arms, through the years that may be allotted her, she is never for an instant off the job. Incidentally the work is arduous. We all agreed to that.

The president takes no keener, more sincere interest in his work than mother does in hers; and when her family of four grows to perhaps seven, even more, why her interest never flags. She is always to be found when wanted, she is never too tired to listen to a woe or appeal; she gives her all and in turn, asks only that her children will do well for themselves and will be the kind of men and women that God intended them to be.

Mother isn't behind the times either, in any sense of the word. She is supposed to be a sort of junior teacher, a member of at least one lodge; she must attend meetings of the civic and do charitable work; she must be a sort of walking encyclopedia, still she can not vote—in some states, I wonder why?

Auto Displeased Deers. A deer charged a motor near Dunfield recently. Apparently the animal was bewildered by the flashing headlights. The deer's antlers were caught in the car, but it was extricated and limped away injured. The shock of the collision made the car swerve dangerously near the steep embankment.

DID NOT LIE DOWN FOR FIVE WEEKS

School Girl Had Serious Bronchial Cough—Cured it With Father John's Medicine.

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with bronchitis. Had a bad attack, coughed all winter and was in the care of a physician."

Last winter, when I had another attack as bad, a lady recommended Father John's Medicine. I commenced taking it in a few weeks, and since then have never missed a day in school. I owe a great deal to it as the results were most favorable. My attack last winter was so bad I was propped up in bed every night for five weeks to get a little rest." (Signed) Vera Virginia, Erie, New York.

Mothers should realize the value of Father John's Medicine as a family remedy for coughs, colds and as a body builder, because it is pure and wholesome, free from alcohol and dangerous drugs and is not a patent medicine, but a doctor's prescription.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

FEEL YOUNG!

It's Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets For You.

Beware of the habit of constipation. It develops from just a few constipated days, unless you take yourself in hand.

Coax the faded bowel muscles back to normal action with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Don't force them to unnatural action with severe medicines or by merely flushing out the intestines with nasty, sickening cathartics.

Dr. Edwards believes in gentleness, persistency and Nature's assistance. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets open the bowels; their action is gentle, yet positive. There is never any pain or griping when Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are used. Just the kind of treatment old persons should have.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a vegetable compound mixed with Olive oil, you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two occasionally and have no trouble with your liver, bowels or stomach. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O. All druggists.

DANGER AFTER GRIPPE

Lies in Poor Blood, Cough and Worn-Out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia are greatly to be feared at this season.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

W. W. Lake of Aberdeen, Miss., says: Grippe left me weak, run-down and with a severe cough from which I suffered for a long time. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone and I am strong and well again."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Jansville, Wis.

Rousing herself from the mute contemplation of her charge, she shook the girl's shoulder. Instantly she was awake and staring, alarm in her dazed, bewildered eyes.

"You must go to bed," said Mrs. Wrاندall quietly. "Don't be afraid. No one will think of coming here. The girl rose. As she stood before her benefactress, she heard her murmur as if from afar-off: "Just about your size and figure" and wondered not a little.

"You may sleep late. I have many things to do and you will not be disturbed. Come, take off your clothes and get into my bed. Tomorrow we will plan further."

"But, madam," cried the girl, "I cannot take your bed. Where are you to—"

"If I feel like lying down, I shall lie there beside you."

The girl stared. "Lie beside me?" "Yes. Oh, I am not afraid of you, child. You are not a monster. You are just a poor, tired—"

"Oh, please don't! Please!" cried the other, tears rushing to her eyes. She raised Mrs. Wrاندall's hand to her lips and covered it with kisses.

Long after she went to sleep, Sara Wrاندall stood beside the bed, looking down at the pale-stricken face, and tried to solve the problem that suddenly had become a part of her very existence.

"It is not friendship," she argued, fiercely. "It is not charity; it is not humanity. It's the debt I owe, that's all. She did the thing for me that I could not have done myself because I loved him. I owe her something for that."

Later on she turned her attention to the trunks. Her decision was made. With ruthless hands she dragged gown after gown from the "innovations" and cast them over chairs, on the floor, across the foot of the bed; smart things from Paris and Vienna; ball gowns, tea gowns, lingerie, blouses, hats, gloves and all of the countless things that a woman of fashion and means indulges herself in when she goes abroad for that purpose and no other to speak of. From the closets she drew forth New York "tailor-suits" and other garments.

Until long after six o'clock she busied herself over this huge pile of costly raiment, portions of which she had worn but once or twice, some not at all, selecting certain dresses, hats, stockings, etc., each of which she laid carefully aside; an imposing pile of many hues, all bright and gay and glittering. In another heap she laid the somber things of black; a meager assortment as compared to the other.

Then she stood back and surveyed the two heaps with tired eyes, a curious, almost scornful smile on her lips. "There!" she said with a sigh. "The black pile is mine, the gay pile is yours," she went on, turning toward the sleeping girl. "What a travesty!" When she gathered up the soiled garments her charge had worn and cast them into the bottom of a trunk, which she locked. Laying out a carefully selected assortment of her own garments for the girl's use when she arose, Mrs. Wrاندall sat down beside the bed and waited, knowing that sleep would not come to her.

CHAPTER III.

Hetty Castleton.

At half past six she went to the telephone and called for the morning newspapers. At the same time she asked that a couple of district messenger boys be sent to her room with the least possible delay. The hushed, scared voice of the telephone girl downstairs convinced her that news of the tragedy was abroad; she could imagine the girl looking at the headlines with awed eyes even as she responded to the call from room 416.

and her shudder as she realized that it was the wife of the dead man speaking.

One of the night clerks, pale and agitated, came up with the papers. Without as much as a glance at the headlines, she tossed the papers on the table. "I have sent for two messenger boys. It is too early to accomplish much by telephone, I fear. Will you be so kind as to telephone at seven o'clock or a little after to my apartment?—You will find the number under Mr. Wrاندall's name. Please inform the butler or his wife that they may expect me by ten o'clock, and that I shall bring a friend with me—a young lady. Kindly have my motor sent to Hafner's garage, and looked after. When the reporters come, as they will, please say to them that I will see them at my own home at eleven o'clock."

The clerk, considerably relieved, took his departure in some haste, and she was left with the morning papers, each of which she scanned rapidly. The details, of course, were meager. There was a double-headed account of her visit to the inn and her extraordinary return to the city. Her chief interest, however, did not rest in these particulars, but in the speculation of the authorities as to the identity of the mysterious woman—and her whereabouts. There was the likelihood that she was not the only one who had encountered the girl on the highway or in the neighborhood of the inn. So far as she could glean from the reports, however, no one had seen the girl, nor was there the slightest hint offered as to her identity. The papers of the previous afternoon had published lurid accounts of the murder, with all of the known details, the name of the victim at that time still being a mystery. She remembered reading the story with no little interest. The only new feature in the case, therefore, was the identification of Challis Wrاندall by his "beautiful wife," and the sensational manner in which it had been brought about. With considerable interest she noted the hour that these dispatches had been received from "special correspondents," and wondered where the shrewd, lynx-eyed reporters napped while she was at the inn. All of the dispatches were timed three o'clock and each paper characterized its issue as an "Extra," with Challis Wrاندall's name in huge type across as many columns as the dignity of the sheet permitted.

Not a word of the girl! Absolute mystery!

Mrs. Wrاندall returned to her post beside the bed of the sleeper in the adjoining room. Deliberately she placed the newspaper on a chair near the girl's pillow, and then raised the window shades to let in the hard gray light of early morn.

It was not her present intention to arouse the wan stranger, who slept as one dead. So gentle was her breathing that the watcher stared in some fear at the fair, smooth breast that seemed scarcely to rise and fall. For a long time she stood beside the bed, looking down at the face of the sleeper, a troubled expression in her eyes.

"I wonder how many times you were seen with him, and where, and by whom," were the questions that ran in a single strain through her mind. "Where do you come from? Where do you meet him? Who is there that knows of your acquaintance with him?"

Her lawyer came in great haste and perturbation at eight o'clock, in response to the letter delivered by one of the messengers. A second letter had gone by like means to her husband's brother, Leslie Wrاندall, instructing him to break the news to his father and mother and to come to her apartment after he had attended to the removal of the body to the family home near Washington square. She made it quite plain that she did not want Challis Wrاندall's body to lie under the roof that sheltered her.

His family had resented their marriage. Father, mother and sister had objected to her from the beginning, not because she was unworthy, but because her tradespeople ancestry was not so remote as his. She found a curious sense of pleasure in returning to them the thing they prized so highly and surrendered to her with such bitterness of heart. She had not been good enough for him; that was their attitude. Now she was returning him to them; as one would return an article that had been tested and found to be worthless. She would have no more of him!

Carroll, her lawyer, an elderly man of vast experience, was not surprised to find her quite calm and reasonable. He had come to know her very well in the past few years. He had been her father's lawyer up to the time of that excellent tradesman's demise, and he had served the estate with such unusual dispatch that the heirs—there were many of them—regarded him as an admirable person and—kept him busy ever afterward straightening out their own affairs. Which goes to prove that policy is often better than honesty.

"I quite understand, my dear, that while it is a dreadful shock to you, you are perfectly reconciled to the result—the well, I might say the culmination of his troubles," said Mr. Carroll tactfully, after she had related for his benefit the story of the night's adventure, with reservation concerning the girl who slumbered in the room beyond.

"Hardly that, Mr. Carroll. Resigned, perhaps. I can't say that I am reconciled. All my life I shall feel that I have been cheated," she said.

He looked up sharply. Something in her tone puzzled him. "Cheated, my dear? Oh, I see. Cheated out of years and years of happiness. I see."

She bowed her head. Neither spoke for a full minute.

"It's a horrible thing to say, Sara, but this tragedy does away with another and perhaps more unpleasant alternative; the divorce I have been urging you to consider for so long."

"Yes, we are spared all that," she said. Then she met his gaze with a sudden flash of anger in her eyes. "But I would not have divorced him—never. You understand that, didn't you?"

"You couldn't have gone on for ever, my dear child, enduring the—"

She stopped him with a sharp exclamation. "Why discuss it now? Let the past take care of itself, Mr. Carroll. The past came to an end night before last, so far as I am concerned. I want advice for the future, not for the past."

He drew back, hurt by her manner. She was quick to see that she had offended him.

"I beg your pardon, my best of friends," she cried earnestly.

He smiled. "If you will take present advice, Sara, you will let go of yourself for a spell and see if tears won't relieve the tension under—"

"Tears!" she cried. "Why should I give way to tears? What have I to weep for? That man up there in the country? The cold, dead thing that spent its last living moments without a thought of love for me? Ah, no, my friend; I shed all my tears while he was alive. There are none left to be shed for him now. He exacted his full share of them. It was his pleasure to wring them from me because he knew I loved him. She leaned forward and spoke slowly, distinctly, so that he would never forget the words.

"But listen to me, Mr. Carroll. You also know that I loved him. Can you believe me when I say to you that I hate that dead thing up there in Burton's inn as no one ever hated before? Can you understand what I mean? I hate that dead body, Mr. Carroll. I loved the life that was in it. It was the life of him that I loved, the warm, appealing life of him. It has gone out. Some one less amiable than I suffered at his hands and—well, that is enough. I hate the dead body she left behind her, Mr. Carroll."

The lawyer wiped the cool moisture from his brow. "I think I understand," he said, but he was filled with wonder. "Extraordinary! Ahem! I should say—Ahem! Dear me! Yes, yes—I've never really thought of it in that light."

"I dare say you haven't," she said, lying back in the chair as if suddenly exhausted.

"By the way, my dear, have you breakfasted?"

"No. I hadn't given it a thought. Perhaps it would be better if I had some coffee."

"I will ring for a waiter," he said, springing to his feet.

"Not now, please. I have a young friend in the other room—a guest who arrived last night. She will attend to it when she awakes. Poor thing, it has been dreadfully trying for her."

"Good heaven! I should think so," said he, with a glance at the closed door. "Is she asleep?"

"Yes. I shall not call her until you have gone."

"May I inquire—"

"A girl I met recently—an English girl," said she succinctly, and forthwith changed the subject. "There are a few necessary details that must be attended to, Mr. Carroll. That is why I sent for you at this early hour. Mr. Leslie Wrاندall will take charge—"

"Perhaps you can," said the miller, "but I have never yet come across one thing."

"Well, then, I'll tell you one. Will patience and perseverance ever enable you to carry water in a sieve?"

"Certainly."

"I would like to know how."

"Simply by waiting patiently for the water to freeze."

Removing Paint From Glass.

Take acetic acid and dilute it one-half in hot water, then apply to the paint spots while it is warm. Reheat if it gets too chilled. The hot acid will not hurt the hands, fabrics or the glass, but it must be kept from children who live mostly from hand to mouth.

Can't Spare the Time.

Bix—"They say that women are hardly ever stammerers." Dix—"No; they have so much to say that they can't stop for it."

"You Did Not Know He Had a Wife?" She Cried.

Ah! she straightened up suddenly. "What a farce it is going to be!"

Half an hour later he departed, to rejoin her at eleven o'clock, when the reporters were to be expected. He was to do all the talking for her. While he was there, Leslie Wrاندall called her up on the telephone. Hearing but one side of the rather prolonged conversation, he was filled with wonder at the tactful way in which she met and parried the inevitable questions and suggestions coming from her horror-stricken brother-in-law. Without the slightest trace of offensiveness in her manner, she gave Leslie to understand that the final obsequies must be conducted in the home of his parents, to whom once more her husband belonged, and that she would abide by all arrangements his family elected to make. Mr. Carroll surmised from the trend of conversation that young Wrاندall was about to leave for the scene of the tragedy, and that the house was in a state of unspeakable distress. The lawyer smiled rather grimly to himself as he turned to look out of the window. He did not have to be told that Challis was the idol of the family, and that, so far as they were concerned, he could do no wrong!

SLAYER OF SON TO BE TRIED SOON; LOVE FOR A WOMAN CAUSES TRAGEDY

M. Fragon and Mlle. Paulet Frank.

The trial of M. Fragon, the man who killed his own son in Paris on December 30, is to be held soon in the French capital. The case of the murder was Mlle. Paulet Frank, sweetheart of young Fragon, with whom the father was also madly infatuated.

The murdered man was one of the most popular comedienne actors in England and France, and was appearing at the Alhambra in Paris at a salary of $5,000 monthly at the time of the tragedy. The trial of the elder Fragon promises to be a great sensation. Mlle. Frank is not being held.

Despite the fact that they have been repudiated by the National Woman Suffrage association, the women of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage at Washington are continuing their work for the federal amendment to the constitution with no noticeable lack of enthusiasm. Their newspaper, "The Suffragist," is sold on the streets of the national capital every Saturday, rain or shine. This picture shows Miss Bessie Barclay, a college girl and chairman of the literature committee, selling their paper to a woman on a rainy day.

DETECTIVE CALLED SELF FRIEND; WOMAN BARED SECRETS; NOW HE ASKS HER DEATH

Frank Oppenheimer and Mrs. Cynthia Buffon.

Frank Oppenheimer, a detective, will be the principal witness against Mrs. Cynthia Buffon when the latter is tried for murder at Salamanca, N. Y., next month. There was no direct evidence that Mrs. Buffon had poisoned her husband, but suspicions were strong. So Oppenheimer, posing as a Buffalo capitalist, wormed himself into the confidence of the woman. Using the information that the detective gained in this way the state succeeded in securing an indictment against Mrs. Buffon last month.

VETERAN MEMBERS INCIDENT IN SIEGE

E. O. Kimberly Corresponds With Iowa Veteran, Regarding Article Published in Washington Paper.

E. O. Kimberly of this city offers herewith an interesting reminiscence of an incident that occurred during Sherman's campaign in the southeastern states. The incident was brought to his mind by an article appearing in the National Tribune by an old soldier, together with correspondence between Mr. Kimberly and the author. During those stirring times these comrades little thought that they would be again thrown into communication after the passage of many years.

"In the latter days of the civil war, and more particularly that relating to Sherman and his army, en route north, the confederates seemed to believe that Charleston was to be the objective point for Sherman, and therefore put forth every effort to check and destroy his army. However, this was not to be. True, feints were made toward that city, with Columbia and Goldsboro, North Carolina, alone in mind. For a considerable length of time our commander and his forces were lost sight of to the enemy. Meanwhile we were quietly plotting our way on to Columbia. Soon after entering that city proof came to us that we were not expected there, so far in the interior, from the fact that many articles of value had been sent to Columbia for safe keeping, from Charleston and elsewhere.

An incident recently came to me out of the northeast corner, and this (nearly fifty years after the event) of our approach and entrance to the place. The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., Dec. 18, 1913, contained an article from an old soldier from starting with my company in the morning. As I came up to where the gun was the gunner said to me: "The shot I just fired knocked a corner out of the state house." I found my regiment in camp a mile above the city, and the next afternoon marched with it into the city, up to the state house, between rows of cotton bales and burning buildings and other exciting scenes for a 18-year-old boy.—A. W. Hepler, Co. E, 10th Iowa, Springfield, Iowa.

Referring again to the Tribune article of last December, I had the pleasure of writing this comrade, A. W. Hepler of Springfield, Iowa, and was soon after favored with a reply in which he says: "I stood by your side when you were using the field glass in company with the captain of the battery and I joined you in conversation during the exciting time." We are able to see therefore, that a considerable amount of time does not destroy memory.

The article in the Washington paper referred to is here given:

At Columbia, S. C. Editor National Tribune: The first shot fired at Columbia, S. C., as Sherman's army approached the city on the opposite side of the Congaree river, was from a 20-pound Columbiad gun, stationed on the bluffs directly across from the new state house. Three shots were fired, one of them hitting the building, knocking a chunk out of the northeast corner, and this probably remains that way today. The incident was referred to at the time place. The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., Dec. 18, 1913, contained an article from an old soldier

Good Help.
A 5 cent jump of smooth or rough pumicestone is a valuable help at the kitchen sink. Use it to remove all sorts of stains from the hands; also to scour off burnt food from granite ware. It will not chip the ware as a knife does, not injure in any way. It also cleans and at the same time sharpens steel knives.

NOVEL EXPRESSIONS

"He had a frank, open face."

Claude Grahame-White and wife in his machine.

Claude Grahame-White, the English birdman, who until recently spoke of flight across the Atlantic as visionary, is now planning to attempt the feat himself in the summer of 1915.

Armed with Science, Shovels and Pluck

The fighting Engineers of the American Army have conquered. Their battle for your Panama Canal is won.

In that nine years war against obstreperous Nature surveyors' transits were the advance guards, steam shovels and giant dredges the field artillery, dynamite the ammunition.

They drove a mountain from its age-long intrenchment in the jungle; they checked the violent onrush of tropical rivers and imprisoned their mad waters.

As every outpost was taken "Old Glory" waved from the ramparts. Every American owes it to himself to know this story of self-sacrifice, service and true patriotism.

Here is the book that tells it!

THE PANAMA CANAL By Frederic J. Haskin Author of "The American Government"

As you turn its pages you will see what a day's work meant to Col. Goethals, the "man at the helm." You will learn about his Sunday "at homes," when any one of the 50,000 workers, from division head to negro laborer, could have a hearing.

Other chapters of this absorbing book will tell you how we excavated the equivalent of a Suez Canal in fifteen months.

How the world's record was made not only for digging dirt, but for digging it at a low cost. How the men who did the digging were kept in good health and good cheer in a land of sweltering heat and drenching rains.

The 5 Points of Authority in this Book

1. All of the chapters in this book pertaining to the actual construction of the canal were read and corrected by Colonel George W. Goethals, Chairman and Chief Engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission.
2. All of the illustrations were made from photographs taken by Mr. Ernest Hallen, the official photographer of the Commission.
3. The book contains the beautiful, colored Bird's-eye View of the Canal Zone, made under the direction of the National Geographic Society, as well as the black-and-white official map of the Canal.
4. The extensive index was prepared by Mr. G. Thomas Ritchie, of the staff of the Library of Congress.
5. The final proofs were revised by Mr. Howard E. Sherman, of the Government Printing Office, to conform with the typographical style of the United States Government.

The book is by the author of "The American Government" which was read by millions of Americans, and still holds the record as the world's best seller among all works of its kind.
